ROOSEVELT PRESIDENT TAFT'S MERCY

By WILLIAM HOSTER.

ERLY, July 1.—The most political at, viewing former President Roosevelt, the latter of the course yesterday, the Colonel is now at the mercy of the Assembly at Albany, Colonel Taft, whether he wants to or not, fight and fight hard, and the measure quality of his fighting depends altogether on the support that he gets from Robert Taft.

Taft Looms Up Bigger. Wherefore, the call on Taft yesterday appears largely in the light of political expediency, of a shrewd move, of a move which probably appeared to Roosevelt in the light of the latest developments. It is a move up as the bigger figure of the two.

It is in this connection, it is to be made plain, that Taft is not a man who is full sympathy with the movement of direct primaries in the State of New York and save the Republican party from the defeat which threatens it. In line with this, a fight is to be made in the State of New York.

Direct primaries, freedom from license and reform in the State of New York will be the slogan, and a fight will be made at once against the movement of the Senate and Assembly which is not right, the direct primary question, and the Senate is almost certain now that such a fight will be made.

Roosevelt's Power at Stake. Before he goes upon the bench in October, Hughes will probably be informed to make public his wish that Taft shall succeed him. The battle will be waged all along the line with the full power of the administration behind Roosevelt and his former secretary, and Roosevelt will be expected to fight as he never fought before, since all his power as a political boss will be at stake in the fight.

Roosevelt will not come here again this summer unless some unforeseen emergency arise. He and the Colonel will keep in touch by mail.

Probably the only shadow that stands between Taft and Roosevelt is Secretary Hughes. In his heart, Roosevelt realizes that Taft had no other course but to displace Hughes, but the presence of the Colonel in the Cabinet will always be an eye-sore to the Colonel. Taft, too, however, probably pass away. There are good reasons for believing that before the summer convenes Mr. Baileys will have resigned from the Cabinet.

Knapp, chairman of the Interior Department, had a conference with Taft on the railroad law. In regard to the current in New York, Taft would be issued by the President to secure the stock market. It was stated the summer capital that no such course being considered.

ROOSEVELT CALLS ON MOODY, WHO IS BETTER, AND LEAVES FOR HOME

Colonel Roosevelt left Boston on the Knickerbocker limited this afternoon for New York, boarding the train at the Rock Island station at 3:04 o'clock. As Senator Lodge bade him goodbye at the car steps the Colonel smiled and said: "I've had a busy time."

The Colonel and the Senator had been to the William H. Moody in the Corner Hill hospital. From there they went to the home of Dr. William C. Bigelow in Beacon street. The doctor is an old friend of Colonel Roosevelt. The doctor is now in Europe, but the callers remained there for half an hour.

Grand Old Hand Shaking. There were fifteen or sixteen reporters at the Rock Bay station when the Colonel reached there at 12:50. He shook hands all round with the reporters, shaking in some of the reporters. "The reporters had come enough to ask," the reporters said, "you could see the big fight at New York."

"I certainly am not," replied the Colonel, and he glowered at the reporter in such a fierce way that the reporter was obliged to make a hasty retreat. The Colonel maintained a discreet silence until the other reporter asked gently: "What is the trouble, Colonel?" "This was a worse break, apparently, for the big hunter than the one at New York," he said.

Justice Moody Out To Morrow. Senator Lodge said that Justice Moody was much improved and that he would be able to leave the hospital for Manhattan tomorrow. Colonel Roosevelt and Senator Lodge reached the hospital at 1:30, and the Colonel remained with the justice until an hour before the justice left for Manhattan. The justice left for Manhattan in a private car.

Not Even a Pleasant Look. That's what the reporters got. There was not even a smile or a raising of the much manipulated brow. "By George," he remarked once of the disappointed young man, "the first is his under the collar."

When Colonel Roosevelt left Nahant at 10:30, he was met by the Colonel. He was shot by the reporters at the gate of Nahant. The Colonel was met by the Senator and the Colonel was in the Lodge. The Colonel was in the Lodge. The Colonel was in the Lodge.

Italy Takes the Final Steps to Get Charlton. ROME.—The Italian government today took the last step preparatory to making its demand upon the United States for the surrender of Charles Charlton, who is tried in Italy for the murder of his wife at Como, when the final papers in the case were drawn up in the foreign office. PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD AEROPLANE RACES

AVIATION WEEK AT ATLANTIC CITY

It is not a far cry back to "Darius Green and his flying machine" when aerial navigation was considered impossible.

To-day Atlantic City is preparing for a great Aviation Meet from July 2 to 11, when three of the greatest aviators of the modern world will demonstrate their mastery of the air.

Glenn H. Curtiss, the holder of the world's record for speed, will fly daily from July 4 to 11.

Walter E. Brookins, who holds the record for high flying, will give exhibitions July 7 to 11 in a Wright airplane.

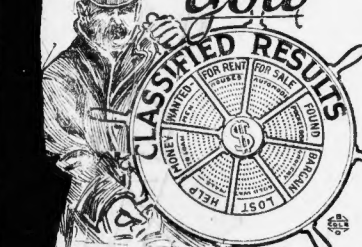

This is the first contest between the Wright and Curtiss machines.

It is also expected that Charles K. Hamilton, the great long-distance aviator, will be present and race from July 7 to 11.

There will be prize events each day, including a fifty-mile flight over a five-mile circular course, and prize high flying, July 7 to 11, directly over the beach, front and ocean.

The Pennsylvania Railroad is the direct route to Atlantic City, and excursion tickets are on sale from New York points.

WOMAN'S LIFE LOST IN BLAZE

Despite the heroic efforts of the police, Mrs. Sarah A. Lipp, an 82-year-old woman, was fatally burned early today as she lay asleep on a cot bed in her home at No. 3 Madison street, Chelsea. She died a few minutes after she was taken from the room.

When the woman was found, she was a mass of flames. Her clothing had been destroyed and her body badly and severely burned. The origin of the blaze is surrounded in mystery. Neither the police nor the firemen could account for it, and an investigation will be held.

DODGING CLOUDS BEST FUN OF ALL, IS VERDICT OF MRS. VANDERBILT

NEW YORK, July 1.—"It was one of the most marvelous experiences I ever had. I want to go up again, but much higher. It is far ahead of automobilism."

This was the enthusiastic declaration made today by Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., who flew before scores of her society friends and hundreds of spectators with Clifford B. Harmon at Mineola in his Farman biplane last evening.

"If I could I'd never ride in any other way than in the air," Mrs. Vanderbilt added. "It is impossible for me to describe how I felt."

No Thought of Failing. "It is the most restful feeling. No exertion, no care. The thought of failure never occurred to me. It seemed impossible to fall off that great big pillow of air."

Mrs. Vanderbilt said that, although the biplane in which she rode and a narrow escape from collision with a Curtiss airplane, driven by George S. Russell, a pilot, she had felt no fear.

"We, we did have a narrow escape," she said, "but I did not seem to mind it at all. We just floated up over that other machine and then down, but so light as a feather, but had enough to last."

Like a Trip in an Auto. Harmon had made the appointment with Mrs. Vanderbilt some hours before and as soon as the machine was rolled out of its house she was on hand to take her place to the aviator. He climbed in first and then offered his distinguished guest to Mrs. Vanderbilt to help her into the seat by his side.

Without showing any sign of alarm, Mrs. Vanderbilt grasped the handle just as if she was going to take a ride in her touring car instead of riding her 12-foot plane in the air.

World was given to the mechanician to start the motor and as the propellers began to revolve Mrs. Vanderbilt gave a little laugh of delight and grasped one of the propellers to brace herself.

The machine revolved around the ground about 100 feet before taking the air. Then it glided gently and easily up into space until it had gained about 100 feet, as reported. It is this that Mrs. Vanderbilt said that she will never forget.

Grown Girls a Flight. No one had been paying any attention to Russell's machine, which had been shot around the harbor and off the field. It was not until the crowd saw the two machines approaching each other in opposite directions that the danger to Harmon and his passenger became apparent.

A group of women went to the crowd, which was, however, changed to a cheer as Harmon was seen to climb the front of his machine and over the

FLEISCHER'S RESIGNATION IS ACCEPTED

The Board of Trustees of Congregation Bnai Chai, Philadelphia, as pastor of the congregation, Rabbi Fleischer declined his resignation as rabbi on July 1, 1910. Circulars containing the resignation and the acceptance by the board have been mailed to all members of the synagogue. Rabbi Fleischer's letter follows:

Philadelphia, August 2nd, 1910. I have a public statement in the fact that I withdrew and to be accepted rabbi of your congregation at the close of my present term. Never since that time have I really changed my mind, though that statement was made in sickness and under strain of poverty, whether real or feigned.

But, being urged on all sides, both within the congregation and without, to reconsider my resolution, I accepted the resignation of April 22, 1910, my readiness to resign, if I could continue my career without conditions, and on the same broad basis which had hitherto governed me to serve not only my congregation, but also the Jewish people.

However, without entering into the various reasons responsible for my resignation, I wish herewith finally to repeat my statement of April 22, to the effect that I desire my resignation to end with August, 1911.

With all wishes for the welfare of the congregation, I remain, as ever, your most loyal and devoted pastor.

John A. Nicholls of Brighton is to be the standard bearer of the Prohibition party of the State this year, being selected as its candidate for Governor in the convention held at Faneuil Hall.

The other candidates are William G. Merrill of Malden for Lieutenant-Governor, William E. Thomas of Brighton for Secretary of State, Fred B. Greenwood of Everett for Treasurer and Receiver General and T. A. Friesell of Hingham for State

There is no difference morally between a community or a State which allows a saloon to run seventeen hours for a license fee and a policeman who lets it run an hour longer for a bribe. Both are alike grafters."

Missplaced Pity

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

LOOKING at the world over, even the most thoughtful of us, find it hard to make of the world as it is. It is a strange, a world of contradictions.

But, while sympathy is helpful and encouraging to its object, pity ofttimes weakens and discourages the one who inspires the sentiment.

However sorry you feel for any of your acquaintances, be careful how you express your pity.

Once during an absence from my native land, I wrote a letter from a friend, filled with pity for the untimely death of a young man, who had been a member of the family of my acquaintance in the

STRAIGHT TIPS FOR SPORT FANS

BILLY MULDOON, THAM WHOM
there is no better trainer in the country, has it about right when he says that Jeff needs more boxing practice. The dog knows all of the fine points of the game, all right, but he needs the rough sparring work that has been from the very beginning the most important part of the dog's training. If Jeff was to get the ring every day and box right or else fast sessions with Barney Barnes, Corbett and Chapsal he would be better prepared for that big go in Reno on the Fourth, believe me.

ONE OF THE BEST POINTS BROUGHT out by Muldoon in his criticism of Jeff is that the bulldozer is not up to snuff in his judge of distance and timing. These are two pretty big things for a fighter to thoroughly know. As it looks to me, here in Boston Jeff is in for a lot of punishment no matter who wins the fight.

ONE OF THE COOL SPOTS TO HEAR the fight returns will be down at the Boston race track where Alex. Arlan has arranged for special service from the stands at Fenway and the area will be over from the hot week tempered by light.

STRAIGHT TIPS.—There will be three rounds with Tim Flanagan at Fenway Island. If you haven't seen him, you will see him in the New England League.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

COPPER STOCK PRICES WEAK

There was an improved tone to the local copper market at today's opening, but forced selling by the appearance of the under the leadership of Associated and North Buile prices made it easily, and for some a generally weak day was displayed.

While the market was weak, trading was active thus yesterday, but orders were mostly for large lots which showed that professional sentiment is still bullish. Any feature that gave a pessimistic trend was the absence of bargain hunting and old bid buying, which was expected to result from yesterday's break.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

Both the New York and Boston Stock and Exchange have been closed to morning and Monday.

More than a billion dollars has been shipped from the United States to Europe in the last few days.

The explanation very generally advanced for the absence of activity in the market on the floor of the exchange is the fact that the market is not in the market in a sufficient extent to lead to any repetition of the excitement which, usually, characterizes every heavy decline in the stock market.

The steel crowd, which keeps a fairly close eye on the market, is taking an optimistic view of the situation and looks for a better result than the purveyors of best news would have people believe.

Any man with $200,000 to invest can make a handsome fortune in the stock market, if he will only buy any stock at the price of $100 a share.

The reduction of the speculative factor to a minimum would place the banking element, and which is not to be despised, in a position to buy any stock at the price of $100 a share.

Great dangers, consequences in the selling of stock, claim that the popular opinion is that the market is not in the market in a sufficient extent to lead to any repetition of the excitement which, usually, characterizes every heavy decline in the stock market.

A Question for the Stock Exchange

Why Not Protect All Employers from Wall Street, Gambling Results?

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

The Boston American reads with interest the rule of the New York Stock Exchange which took effect on April 4th.

This rule reads:

Resolved, That the taking or carrying of a speculative account, or the making of a speculative transaction, in which a clerk of the Exchange, or of a member of the Exchange, or of a bank, trust company, banker or insurance company, is directly or indirectly interested, unless the written consent of the employer has been first obtained, shall be deemed an act detrimental to the interest and welfare of the Exchange.

On behalf of others who do not care to have their clerks made into gamblers, who feel pain when they hear of defalcations at their expense in the course of stock gambling, we beg to ask this question:

Why doesn't the New York Stock Exchange, and the Boston Stock Exchange, too, for that matter, also rule that NO EMPLOYEE be allowed to gamble unless he has the written consent of his employer EVEN IF THAT EMPLOYER DOESN'T HAPPEN TO BE A MEMBER OF THE EXCHANGE OR A BANKER?

Why not protect boot and shoe dealers, and dry goods dealers, and the other citizens?

If the stock exchanges cannot make a rule to this effect, MONT THE VOTERS MAKE SUCH A RULE!

Why don't they pass a law making it compulsory on every one to publish the name of EVERY individual dealing with him? Those that DON'T gamble would not object to the publicity. And those that DO gamble might be saved by it.

In saying this we do not echo the cheerful idiocy of those who endeavor to show that the stock exchange is NOTHING BUT a gambling institution.

A stock exchange is a necessary part of industry, banking and general business as carried on now. There must be a ready market for securities. But gambling is more than half the stock exchange, and that PURE GAMBLING, like all others, should be stopped.

T. F. Ryan's Tribute to Some Young Men

How Did He Happen to Skip Some OTHER Young Men? Was He Perhaps Praising His Best Customers? Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

Also certain young men—sons of some of the very biggest and richest men who compete with Ryan in the great scramble FOR ALL THE MONEY.

Ryan praised J. Pierpont Morgan—no words were good enough to praise the majesty of the king of the Steel Trust and other trusts.

Mr. Ryan also praised some of the young lions of Wall Street. He told the people that Pierpont Morgan, Jr., is very powerful and can be relied upon to do "splendid things" as his father has done them.

And Ryan praised the ability of the son of Stillman, the great banker.

He made out a list of important men in high finance—and it was a very interesting list of young men.

But the list of the young men praised by Ryan was not nearly as interesting as THE LIST OF NAMES THAT HE FORGOT TO MENTION.

How does it happen that Mr. T. F. Ryan had nothing to say about the ability and energy of John D. Rockefeller, Jr.? There is a young man who sits in his father's office and runs a pretty big business—evidently to the father's satisfaction, since the father devotes his time to playing the market and finding new ways of giving away money.

Thomas F. Ryan said nothing about Kingdon Gould, eldest son of J. P. Gould and eldest grandson of Jay Gould.

Kingdon works with his father—he has worked with his father and his father's business ever since he was sixteen years old—and his father has sent him boy to college that he was sending out a trained business man.

Mr. Ryan happens to leave young Gould out of his list of names that seem able to look after themselves and carry on the business in future?

Young men, very able, were omitted from Mr. Ryan's list of names.

It is not that the intelligent Mr. Ryan was praising, even flattery, of young lions whose golden manes he means to shear in the future? Was he perhaps praising those that he had found USEFUL to him in business?

For instance, quite recently Mr. Ryan handed to the Morgans, and son, a very gigantic concern called the Equitable Life Assurance Society. The law now makes it difficult for the controlling company to rob the company and policy holders. Therefore the street in its own language felt and said that Ryan had handed a large "lemon" to Mr. Morgan.

Was his praise of Morgan the father and Morgan the son based on the fact that they had proved themselves good customers of the Ryan "advertising"?

It is not that Ryan forgot to mention young Rockefeller because, with all his money, Ryan has never succeeded in getting any of the Rockefellers as never succeeded in selling the Rockefellers, senior or junior, anything that was worthless, or getting from them anything valuable or compelling them to DIVIDE with him?

It is not that Ryan forgot to include George Gould and his son Kingdon in his list of names because when he owned New York's street car system it was impossible to get the elevated railway away from George Gould, with obedient Tammany Hall threatening to tear down the structure in Battery Park?

It is not that Ryan forgot to mention the elevated railway it did so by guaranteeing a per cent. forever on the tens of millions of nice, pure bonds held by the Gould family.

Mr. Ryan did not get the Gould property in the hands of the Goulds. He DID NOT HAD TO GIVE MONEY TO GET THE ELEVATED WAY IN THE HANDS OF THE GOULDS.

Mr. Ryan praised

Teachers, Welcome to Boston

You Are Soldiers Fighting for the Common Good and This Historic City Is a Fine Place in Which to Renew Your Patriotism

The Boston American feels perfectly certain that it voices the sentiment of its great constituency of readers when it bids a warm welcome to the host of school teachers beginning to gather in this city for the annual meeting of the National Teachers' Association.

Boston, always a lover of learning, bids you welcome! This newspaper and this section of the United States recognize the mighty power for good that lies in the hands of the great army of school teachers of the land. Interviewed by a reporter of the Chronicle a few weeks in London about conditions and possibilities in this country, W. Hearst declared:

"Education is the most important of all things." This is a fine part of the country for the renewal of patriotism and the teacher needs it as badly as any soldier who ever fought on a field of battle.

The school teacher is fighting the great battle of peace without glory that comes to the soldier in time of war. They are warriors fighting for the common good.

The greatest patriotic duty that one can imagine is the teaching of the boys and girls of our land that which will make them good great citizens in the future. The teachers do not get paid enough. Neither do the soldiers get paid enough for fighting in war time.

It will probably be some satisfaction for the teachers gathered in Boston to reflect that in this wonderful age of the world, as it is to us now, but which is only a tiny hint as to what the future will be, the real thinkers are coming out in advocacy of the simple way we have always taught in our schools as the surest foundation of greatness.

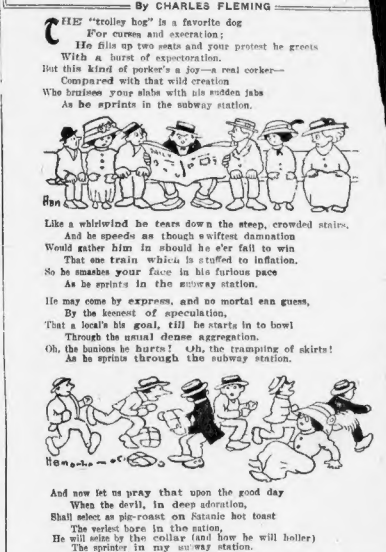

Because love of country, love of home and love of education are not new things is no reason that they are not good things. Things worth while are old and have been advocated by teachers many centuries.

We trust that this meeting of the teachers will not only be profitable but a real pleasure. Teachers get too few of the good of life in the way of travel, entertainment and social enjoyment. Boston is a fine Summer city with the coolness of the mountain and the tang of the real sea very near.

While our visitors are discussing the latest system of education, visiting the historical spots (the Blake House in Dorchester where stood the first free school in America) it is to be hoped that from the inland especially will get a chance to visit the rocky shores of New England and get acquainted with the sea.

A thoughtful hour on the seashore will broaden the mind and home to any teacher his deeper responsibility to God and human

The Subway Sprinter

A Contrast and a Request

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN: Beyond. To his wife he says: "It has been the other side I walked through some a very hot day." This is the type of man who, if elected to the Legislature, would vote against a bill to aid poor workmen to acquire homes. One of the departments of the United States Government thus defines its policy: "It is considered to be the better policy to expend a small amount of public money in making fish for the people or large, rather than to expend a much larger sum in revealing the people from catching the few fish that still remain after general loss of improvidence." Would it not be a better policy to expend some of the State's money, or its credit, to buy land and build houses for needy workmen, than to expend a much larger sum to erect model and correctional institutions, with a host of high salaried officials, in order to support the human product which springs from unhealthy and some teaching environments? Are not the best ways of conversation as fish, land, or trees? Your paper has done pioneer and successful work in the past. Will you ever again on the press?
